Malus sargentii is a dwarf ornamental apple with a dense head and spreading habit. The flower buds start as red, the open to bright white blossoms. The apple is small, red and remains on the tree for an extended period. The birds remove the apple from the tree, before it can be a litter problem. Sargent is one of the most disease resistant apples on the market. Scab, rust, mildew and fireblight do not bother it at all. It's also resistant to Japanese Beetle. M. Sargenti is very floriferous and sets lots of fruit which are very showy in the fall/winter. Fall color is orange/yellow, also showy. Robinson Nursery offers Malus sargentii as a branched tree.
