'Spring Snow' Ornamental Apple

Crown: Oval, round

Growth Rate: Moderate

Soil: Clay, loam, sand

Drought: Moderate tolerance

Fruit: Essentially fruitless

A fruitless crabapple (except in enclosed locations), what a deal. No muss, no fuss. Besides being fruitless, 'Spring Snow' is a great white flowering ornamental apple. Buds start as pink, then open to white. Fall color is yellow. As with most apples, 'Spring Snow' tolerates a wide variety of soils: clay, loam and sand, acid or slightly alkaline, some wet situations in the winter months. It is also drought tolerant once established. 'Spring Snow' has poor resistance to scab, fair resistance to fireblight and has excellent resistance to mildew and good resistance to Rust. So it is probably best used in dry spring and summer climates. Robinson Nursery offers 'Spring Snow' as bare root branched and multi-stem trees.
