

Merry Christmas from all of us at Robinson Nursery

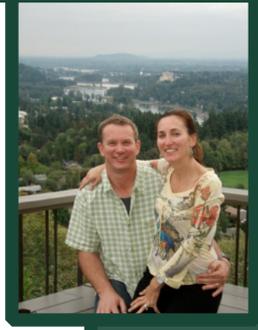

I woke up to a couple inches of snow this morning. The weather man is predicting a few days of temperatures in the low teens. This could be the coldest I've seen it in our area in 10 years or so. Our crew has been scrambling to winterize the nursery and we should be in good shape for the cold weather. Our fall digging went well. After a very wet start we had a nice run of good weather and we are 60% harvested with the goal of being done the 1st week of January. We always try to be done grading by the time shipping season rolls around so that our numbers are accurate. Sales continue to trickle in and it looks like we will see a small increase over last year. Customers continue to tell us that they are seeing improvement. We are thankful for that.

Our family will all be home for the holidays and we are looking forward to a great time at Christmas. Christmas is one of my favorite times of the year. I remember the anticipation of Christmas morning as a kid with presents under the tree and family gathered together to celebrate. I remember the glass of milk and cookies that we used to put out for Santa. They would all be consumed by morning in spite of us kids trying to catch him in the act. In those days we would go to midnight mass, enjoy the nativity scene, and sing Christmas carols. Then we would come home for a huge meal and open presents. As part of our tradition we have added a birthday party for Jesus with a cake and candles. As I have gotten older the meaning of Christmas has changed a bit, from the birth of little baby Jesus in the manger, to deeper meaning of Gods greatest gift to humanity. In spite of all the problems in this world, Gods plan of Jesus birth, life, death, and resurrection gives us a hope we can hang onto. I hope you will be touched by our risen Savior during this holiday season.

We want to wish you a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year. ~ Rick

Welcome Jim!

This past year we took a hard look at mixing our own soil. We had been trucking our mixed soil in from one of our kind neighbors down the road. We realized it made financial sense to buy a system to mix our own soil on site. I spent some time investigating soil mixing systems. We decided to stick with a local company, Wurdinger Manufacturing. Today they are putting the finishing touches on the system and we will be ready to start planting in our greenhouses as soon as digging and grading is finished. We are excited about this new addition to our nursery and look forward to its benefits. ~Chris
